As per previous consultations, our reasoning for the preservation of these gaps and to keep buildings from encroaching into Crookham Village have not changed. We moved into the area, paying the property prices commanded for a rural, village way of life and wish it to remain so. Merging neighbouring settlements and destroying the beautiful landscape removes all identity that makes Crookham Village what it is. Many a time we have taken visitors for a stroll down to the canal on a weekend, possibly heading off for lunch at the pub and every time we have been told 'you live in a beautiful part of England'. Preserving these gaps will ensure the identity and conservation areas for each community, especially Crookham Village. At a time where discussion is all around global warming and climate change, is it not our responsibility to keep these rural areas from encroaching, greedy developers – to keep the landscapes as free and clear as humanly possible? We could have moved to London or its surrounding areas had we wanted city life.
